99AUT080REMARKS

Applicant wishes to thank the Examiner for the detailed remarks. Claims 1-6 are pending.

Claims 1-3, and 4 were rejected under 35 U.S.C. §102(b) as being anticipated by Bates (3,913,940.) Applicant appreciates the Examiner's annotated Figure 2 but respectfully traverses this rejection. The Examiner admits the Bates does not clearly teach a deformable air cell. Office Action paragraph 4. The claims require such a cell. This rejection cannot be sustained. Claims 1-3 and 4 are thus properly allowable.

Claims 1-3 and 4 were rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Bates in view of Koschinat (4,890,823.) Applicant respectfully traverses this rejection. Koschinat discloses a known completely cylindrical air cell. Koschinat discloses a two-piece plunger piston formed of a composite material, whose two parts support each other and assume specific tasks. The outer plunger piston essentially assumes the normal guiding of the air spring bellows ... the internal truncated conical portion absorbs the pressure and tensile forces. See Col 3, lines 9-25. The internal conical portion is not deformable. The claims require such a deformable air cell. Thus, Koschinat adds nothing to Bates which would teach or suggest the present invention.

Claims 5 and 6 were rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Bates in view of Koschinat (4,890,823) and Smith (5,234,203.) Applicant respectfully traverses this rejection. Smith also discloses a completely cylindrical air cell and does not solve the deficiencies of Bates in view of Koschinat as described above.
